Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 26 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning colder with squally rain and showers.

Today:
A wet morning with a band of heavy squally rain pushing eastwards clearing the region by midday. Sunny spells and scattered showers, heavy at times, will follow throughout the afternoon. Feeling chilly in blustery conditions. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Further sunny spells and scattered showers this evening, however these showers will become sparser by the morning. Feeling chilly with a risk of frost for prone spots. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Saturday:
Largely bright with isolated showers to start. Patchy cloud thickening from the west during the afternoon will bring scattered showers, heavy for some. Light winds turning strong by evening. Chilly. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Cloudy with the odd spell of rain on Sunday. Largely clear and dry on Monday and Tuesday with light winds. Conditions turning milder on Sunday becoming very mild by Tuesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.